WEDNESDAY, May 26-6 P. M. The stock market opened dull and depressed this merning, but closed more buoyant. After the adjournment of the first board, there was a general improvement in prices, and a more active movement in the leading fancies. Quotations to-day, compared with those current at the close yesterday, show a decline in Canton Com-pany of % per cent; Long Island %; Harlem, %; Wicaragua Transit, 34. Eric Railroad advanced 34 per cent; Reading Railroad, 14. All others remain without alteration. Some of the largest holders of stocks feel confident much higher prices will room be realized. They argue that we have had very little speculation; that comparatively, prices rule low, much lower than those current last year at this time; that nearly every stock on the list is really worth much more than it was twelve menths since; that money now is plenty at three and four per cont per namum, whereas, at that time it was worth six and evern per cent; that the prospect is favorable for all more reduced rates of interest; that rain reads contains a solid property of the analysis of every description, are doing a better and more profitable basiness than ever before—in fact, that there navor was a more favorable time for outsiders to come into the market and purchase anything on the list. We must admit that any of the agreements are assumed and come of the agreements are assumed as a come of the agreements are assumed and come of the agreements are assumed as a companion of the come. many of these arguments are sound, and cannot be con- regular; neither has there beside operators, large enough to give any important impe-tus to prices, can be found. At present the regular strest operators have control of all the leading securities, and they are desirous of getting rid of them or at all events of reducing very materially their supplies. Instead of letting prices down so that new purchasers would have a greater margin for a rise, and greater probability of realizing a profit. holders are more disposed to maintain them, and expect speculators to come in on the top of the market. It is possible they may do so. As the value of money becomes reduced, and the speculative propensities of our people strengthen, movements in fancy stocks may become more active, and their market value advance. We see no other way of using even a small portion of our rapidly accumulating capital. The banks are full of specie. The amount in the Wall street banks, at this moment, is probably greater than ever before known. New banks are springing up like mushrooms in every section of the country. The paper currency is increasing provista with the metallic, and we are borne along upon the surface of the current, without any knowledge of the dangers which beset us in our navigation. The experience of the past is no guide for the future in financial affairs. The production of gold in California and Australia has revolutionized all the financial systems of the world, and we are about entering upon a new era in commerce, and trade. We must mark out new lines, perfect new sysiems, adopt new principles, under the new order of things. One thing is, however, pretty certain, we are going ahead too fast. Credit, both private and public, is expanding too rapidly; and unless something occurs to give an immediate check to the movements of the day, we shall have, before the lapse of many months, a sudden panic, with all its accompanying evils. It must be admitted that the basis of the present expansion is sound-It differs from all others which have preceded it; but with this favorable feature, it cannot stand too great an accumulation in the shape of credits, extravagance, &c. Public confidence is subject to such sudden revulsions, that, after having passed a certain point, it becomes highly dangerous to continue, Capitalists become cautious and timid, and more closely investigate operations. Business paper is more closely examined Rumors of weakness in certain quarters become current, individual credit tainted, and all at once, without, apparently, a real cause, a collapse takes place, and a panie spreads over the country with the rapidity of a whiriwind. All the gold in California and Australia, piled up in Wall street, would not arrest this movement when fairly in motion. If the vault of any bank in Wall street was filled to the brim with bullion, it would be of little service to the commercial and financial community, without credit, and it is therefore dangerous to tamper with such an important, such an indispensable element in the operations of trade. We are at this moment rushing wildly, blindly, recklessly into the vertex which has hitherto swallowed up so many hundreds of millions of indebtedness; and as rapidly as paper promises to pay have been manufactured, they may, by one of those processes so frequently resorted classes of this country, be expunged in a much shorter time than that required for their creation. The receipts at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of this port. to-day, amounted to $71,660, payments, $76,298 85—balance, $3,852,538 87. All claims against the Hamilton Bank, of Rhode Island, to, or rather so frequently forced upon the commercial must be presented to the receiver, on or before the 1st of June, proximo, or forfeit all claim to the dividend then

The demand for land warrants continues active, and the supply good. We quote 160 acre warrants, $125 a $128; eighty acre warrants, $64 a $67; forty acre warrants, $32 a $34. Prices fluctuate considerably, and Arrangements are in progress for the establishment of a banking institution at Cairo, Illinois, under the Free Banking laws of that State, with the circulation secured by the deposit of Virginia State Bonds, under the name of the "Virginia State Stock Bank," commencing with a capital of $100,000. The large expenditures soon to be made at Cairo, by the trustees of that city, the railroad company, and others, in improvements upon the property, together with the immense amount of the productions of the West, for which Cairo must soon become the principal entrepot, cannot fail to make it an important institution.

The St. Louis Price Current remarks:—

We have heard it rumored that the "Pigeon Roost Plank Road Company," and the "Northwestern Feather Company," are about to avail themselves of hanking privileges, granted to them by their charter, and issue notes for circulation. All kinds of trash in the form of notes for circulation that any city was ever cursed with, is now in circulation in our city. Shinphasters and counterfeit notes are plenty, and every few days something new shows itself. One can hardly receive $100 in the ordinary course of business, without indings from eight to ten kinds of shinphasters mixed in, payable at some out of the way inaccessible place. Beautifully engraved drafts, drawn in another State, in sums of one, two, three, live and ten dollars, upon some one living on the verge of civilization; certificates of deposits, in like annal sums, drawn by sgents of character and standing on some foreign insurance company or individual irms, and orders, in mail sums, on some plank road company, seem to be the most prevalent in our city.

These notes must have been manufactured exclusively The St. Louis Price Current remarks:-

These notes must have been manufactured exclusively for circulation in the Western country. None of these have made their appearance in this city. Under the free banking law of all the prominent Western States. one of the safest paper currencies in the world will be issued, and it must drive away all such trush as that named above. Issues of any bank, secured by a deposit in proper hands of sound State stocks, cannot be otherwise than good, and people should be careful how they touch any other paper currency. The mania for manufacturing bonds for raising money to construct railroads, has taken such a deep hold upon the public mind, that almost any scheme finds its advocates and supporters. The annexed article, from the Troy Daily Whig, gives an insight into the modus operandi of getting up some of these bonds:—

THE MOREY MARKET AND FARCE FROMS.—Some of our more discreet New York contemporaries have expressed fears of late, lest the present abundance of money might lead to extravagent enterprises and has cure investments, Judging from some things that have lately transpired in Wall street, we are inclined to think this apprehension is not altogether without foundation, and what renters the matter worse is that we find come of the very journals that have thus entry given the warrang, contributing to produce the apprehension exhausting to produce the apprehension can be presented in the value of certain stocks thrown upon the market and by commending those stocks thrown upon the market and by commending those stocks as fart class, when in of getting up some of these bonds:and by commending the stocks as fat class, when in next they should be classed among what they really are, the more that class that ever spring up under an induled condition of the money market. Or this class of securities we notice that the "Albuny Novitiera Railrond Pond" are help analysing before the Well dreet public. We are not a inite augmented that this Jewani of ty any conveyance of land for the use of such road. We trust those journals that advise people to purchase, and they who are inclined to purchase, know that the proposed Albany Northern Railroad is parallel to two other roads, and the Champlain Canal Dut a few miles separate—is longer, will cost more, and have a heavier grade than either of the other roads—and that there is no possibility of its ever paying. We have heard of water lot property, of city plots mapped out on paper, of mill sites on prairies, of Paine's gas, and other enterprises of a similar character, but never have we before seen or known of anything in the railroad line that bore so strong a resemblance to these. The intelligent reader throughout the region where this road is said to be, but where in reality it is not, and never will be unless men have a million of money to throw away, have enjoyed keenly the glowing representations in behalf of this project, touching the advantages of line, bu-inces, and general prespects of the "Albany Northern Road." We presume Wall street labors under the impression that this road penetrates a wide extent of country having no outlet, ready to pour its treasures over this road; when the truth is no other region of the State, of equal extent and population, has so many facilities already—there being a canal and two railroads through the whole extent.

Whenever there is an abundance of money, every description of enterprises will arise to get it. Not all these turn out to be meritorious, or even based upon such principles as are usually recognized as fair and honorable. At the present time, it may be well for capitalists to exercise discretion, lest what appears to be regular in form, and desirable for investment turn out to be the merest humbugs, if not downright swindles.

Railroad companies, which have a portion of their road completed and in operation, can legitimately issue bonds, properly secured by a first mortgage. Such investments completed and in operation, can legitimately issue bonds, properly secured by a first mortgage. Such investments are safe. and bona fide. We are pleased, at all times, to point out such and recommend them to the capitalists, and all others seeking productive employments for their money. But when we see such an attempt to raise money as is shown by the above article, it is due to the public to expose it. It appears by this, that the Albany Northern Railroad Company has not yet been organized, that no subscriptions of stock have been made, no road con-structed no nothing, showing that a railroad was even in contemplation. It used to be the custom of raising enough money by stock subscriptions, to construct about one-half or two-thirds of the line, and then raise sufficient to complete and equip the road by an issue of first mortgage bonds. This was the true system, and generally succeeded. This, however, is literally a railroad age. and a new system has taken the place of the old. The result can easily be foreseen.
